CRC Notes

THE CITIZENS RESEARCH COUNCIL OF MICHIGAN IS NOW ONLINE

CRC has developed a Web site to provide information about CRC, to provide access to CRC publications, to provide data and odd facts that have not found their way into the formal CRC publications, and to provide hyperlinks to other Web sites.

CRC's Web site address, or URL, is: http://www.crcmich.org

What Can Be Found At crcmich.org

What is CRC?

This page tells About CRC, The Mission of CRC, Core Values of CRC, Who is CRC, and How CRC Works. It also has information about the staff, the Board of Directors, and the Board of Trustees.

CRC News

This page provides information about past and future events at CRC. Expect to find news about Annual Meetings, new hires, presentations given to different organizations, and testimony given on policy issues.

Membership

This page explains how CRC is financed and provides an opportunity to obtain more information about CRC membership.

Please note that the Farmington Hills office has a new E-Mail address: crcmich@mich.com

Publications

Publications from recent years are available for download. These publications are posted in the Adobe Portable Document Format (PDF). The Adobe Acrobat Reader software, a shareware program, is needed to view these files.

These pages provide two avenues for searching through the CRC archives:

- One page provides a list of publications by year dating all the way back to CRC's inception in 1916.
- A second page provides a list of publications by subject. An index has been created to search through this list.

Order Publications

Although recent publications can be downloaded, publications from earlier years will have to ordered. This page is a form to order individual publications or to have your name placed on our mailing list for future publications. Publications that show some demand will be given priority in being posted for download, so that others will not have to order the publication.

Data File

This page will include useful data and information not available in CRC publications. It will contain items of interest regarding state and local government organization and finance and material relevant to current policy debates.

WebLinks

This page is provided so that the CRC Web site can be a resource in connecting to other organizations that provide information or do research on public policy issues. This page is broken down into five sections. Links are provided to:

1) Other non-profit governmental research organizations that are located in many states;
2) Other organizations that do research on Michigan state and local government public policy issues;
3) National organizations that do research or provide information on public policy issues;
4) Michigan state government Web sites; and,
5) Federal government Web sites.

Feedback to CRC

The aim of the CRC Web site is to make information about CRC and the research we do readily available to the public. If any part of our Web site fails in this attempt, if any part can be built on to make it more user-friendly, or if any part has exactly served this purpose, we would like to know. Feedback can be provided using the Visitor Feedback section in the Order Publications page or by E-Mailing CRC.
